FIRST RULE OF ADVANCEMENT

Career self-sabotage occurs frequently as trends in fashion veer more and more toward casual wear, that is, flip flops, jeans, and Tee's. As rising comfort levels with past trends moves casual wear into the permanent fashion vernacular, they tend to trickle into the office. This season, designers have given us a reason to bring business attire back to the office with statement pieces such as blouses with voluminous sleeves, bold belts focusing on the waist, and chunky heels with great height. Toss in a statement neck piece; say, vintage pearls, and you have tackled the first rule in climbing the corporate ladder: dress as though you belong at the top.
